CLASSIFICATION OF OCCUPATIONS

NINTH CENSUS OF CANADA, 1951

INTRODUCTION

The Classification of Occupations presented in this volume is designed for use in the Ninth Census of Canada, 1951. It consists of 16 divisions or major groups, 21 sub-groups (only 3 divisions are sub-divided), 280 occupation classes, and approximately 14,000 occupational titles. The occupational titles found in this edition are a revision and expansion of terms which appeared in previous census classifications and are based chiefly on experience resulting from their use in the coding of census occupation returns. In addition, much valuable material was obtained from the United States Dictionary of Occupational Titles.

The Classification of Occupations, although complete in itself, is designed for use in conjunction with its companion volume the "Standard Industrial Classification Manual". It was found convenient in many cases, to qualify occupational titles in terms of industry codes as they appear in the latter classification. Thus, "020 Manager - Mfg. (200-399)" for example, is intended to include all persons reported as "manager" in combination with any manufacturing establishment listed in the Standard Industrial Classification Manual under the industrial classes 200 to 399, inclusive. This form of presentation indicates more clearly the particular group of managers included in the occupation class "020" than would be the case by merely listing the term "020" Manager - Mfg." At the same time this form of presentation eliminates the necessity of listing all the industrial establishments possible in combination with the occupation "manager". (See also "Industrial Designations", on page 10).

Presentation: This volume is divided, for convenience of the coder, into three separate sections, i.e., (1) Summary (2) Classified and (3) Alphabetical. The Summary of Occupation Classes, set out according to divisions and sub-groups, appears first, followed in turn by the Classified and Alphabetical Sections. The Summary of Occupation Classes contains the framework of the present classification and shows the total number of occupation classes, with the three-digit code symbol, considered advisable for census purposes, as well as their general arrangement within divisions and sub-groups. The Classified Section expands the framework in that it shows a complete listing of related occupational titles under each occupation class. Finally, the Alphabetical Section presents all occupational titles, in strict alphabetical order, together with the assigned code symbols.

Basis of Classification: The selection of a base for an Occupation Classification designed for census use is not as simple as it might at first appear. It is true that "the kind of work performed or service rendered" is a basic concept of an occupation classification since it is inherent in the definition of the term "occupation". However, this basic concept does permit the organization of occupational titles into an occupation structure in any one of several ways, depending upon the criteria or primary basis adopted for classifying or grouping occupational titles into occupation classes. This problem arises chiefly from the fact that job terminology is the resultant of such elements as academic, vocational, apprenticeship, or specialized training, type of machine operated, experience necessary, degree of skill required, material worked in, conditions of work, physical demands, etc. The resulting classification, therefore, depends upon the element or combination of elements to which chief consideration is given. In addition, the final product may be designed so as to reflect a socio-economic, a quasi-industrial, level of skill, etc., aspect.

In approaching the problem of selecting a basis for a useful Classification of Occupations it is necessary, of course, to give due weight to the end result, i.e., the occupational statistics derived therefrom and the uses to which they may be put. On the other hand, it is even more important to consider the source and quality of the information which must be used to produce such occupational statistics. A classification, no matter how well designed, will be unsatisfactory if it fails to recognize the classification problems inherent in the raw material which it must digest. With these basic problems in mind the Classification of Occupations presented in this volume is based on the "kind of work performed or service rendered" giving consideration, as deemed practical within the limits of census returns, to several elements. Thus level of skill was given prime consideration in the case of most professional occupation classes, types of machines operated or material worked in was considered vital in so far as most occupation classes in the manufacturing division were concerned, physical effort involved entered into the establishment of most classes provided for in the agriculture, mining, logging divisions as well as in segregating occupational titles to form the class of "labourers (not agricultural, fishing, logging, or mining)", etc.

Coverage: In spite of the fact that approximately 14,000 occupational terms are shown in this volume, it is not expected that the coverage is complete. Occupations will be reported on census documents as well as on questionnaires of other surveys which will not be found in the Alphabetical Index. Failure to locate occupation titles in this index may be due to any one of three main reasons, i.e., (a) technological progress, reorganization of business practices, etc., frequently give rise to (i) new occupational titles or (ii) changes in the names of existing titles, (b) existing titles may in some cases, assume a colloquial flavor, and (c) respondents may often be unfamiliar with official occupational titles of workers for whom they must give information to the enumerator so that the garbled title reported may bear little resemblance to the one for which it stands. None the less the occupational index is sufficiently comprehensive to permit the classification and assignment of omitted terms to the proper occupation class by reference to and an examination of occupation terms listed under a particular class to which it seems most closely related. For this reason it is important that a study of the classification be made and a general idea of the content of the various classes be obtained before coding or at least during the early stages of coding. The quality of coding depends, to a great degree, on one's knowledge of the classification.

ALPHABETICAL ARRANGEMENT

1. General: The arrangement of occupational titles in the Alphabetical Index (Section 3) as well as under each occupational class of the Classified Index (Section 2) follows a strict alphabetical order. Explanatory words or symbols in brackets are disregarded for this purpose. Indexing of terms in this volume, therefore, differs from that found in the companion volume "Standard Industrial Classification Manual". To illustrate this point, let us assume that terms shown in the example below are common to both classifications, in which case they would be arranged as follows:

In the Classification of Occupations	In the Standard Industrial Classification Manual
Colour boy	Colour boy
Colourer	Colour expert
Colour expert	Colour man
Colourist	Colourer
Colour man	Colourist

From the above illustration it would appear that the arrangement followed in this volume is not as neat and orderly as the one used in the Standard Industrial Classification Manual, and yet it does have one obvious merit. The fact that the number of words does not determine the order of the title is a useful feature in that it obviates the necessity of checking all possible word combinations when a census enumerator reports an occupational title in one, two, or more words.

2. Abbreviated Occupation Titles: Abbreviated occupation titles, e.g., C.P.A., A.B. seaman, P.B.X. operator, L.A.C., etc., are indexed at the top of each alphabetical section as determined by the first letter.

3. Multiple Word Occupation Titles: Selection and cross-indexing of occupation titles consisting of two or more words presents a knotty problem in so far as devising an occupation classification for census use is concerned. This difficulty arises chiefly because of the fact that enumerators frequently fail to state specifically the occupation title in full. Thus an enumerator may report "agent" as the occupation and "insurance" or "life insurance" as the type of industry in which the person is employed rather than specify the occupation in full, i.e., "insurance agent" or "life insurance agent" together with the appropriate industry designation. This simple illustration gives rise to five possible alternatives which might be shown in the alphabetical index for complete coverage, i.e., "agent-insurance", "insurance agent-insurance", "life insurance agent-insurance", "agent, insurance-insurance" and "agent, life insurance-insurance". Obviously such a detailed listing, showing all possible forms or combinations in each case, is impracticable from the standpoint of size and use of this volume. This condition, therefore, necessitated careful examination of each multiple word title and cross-indexing it in the Alphabetical Index as best suited the individual case according to one of the three alternatives explained and illustrated below:

Type A - Natural or Usual Word Order Only: Multiple word occupation titles which are reported in the usual word order, if reported at all, are, for the most part, indexed only once, i.e., in the natural word sequence. Occupation titles belonging to this category are:

Cabinet maker	Lathe hand
Calender man	Notary public
Drill runner	Paper boy
Heat treater	Track worker
Kiln burner	Trouble shooter

Type B — Key Words: In order to save space, cross-indexing was completely eliminated for all occupation titles containing any one of the 11 selected words (known as key words) which occur very frequently. The list of key words is as follows:

Agent	Helper	Mechanic
Apprentice	Inspector	Operator
Assembler	Labourer	Repairman
Engineer	Manager

Occupation titles containing a key word are listed only once in the Alphabetical Index and are indexed according to the qualifying word or words under the key word. If, for example, "locomotive engineer" appears on the schedule find the key word "engineer" and then look for the word "locomotive" listed under this key word. The correct code for "locomotive engineer" is shown opposite the qualifying word "locomotive". Locomotive engineer, like all other occupational titles containing a key word, is not found in its natural or usual order in the Alphabetical Index.

Type C — Natural or Usual and Inverted Order: Occupation titles which are reported not only in their natural or usual order but also incompletely reported and thus necessitating reference to type of industry information in order to determine the full occupation title are, for the most part, cross indexed in the Alphabetical Index.

Examples of this type are:

(Conductor, dining car	(Cutter, pulpwood
(Dinning car conductor	(Pulpwood cutter
(Digger, ditch	(Driver, taxi
(Ditch digger	(Taxi driver

4. Cross-indexing in Alphabetical Section Only: Cross-indexing of multiple word occupation titles, as outlined in the preceding section (No. 3), applies to cross reference of such terms in the Alphabetical Index only. In order to save space, multiple word occupation titles are, for the most part, shown only once, i.e., in the usual or natural word order, in the Classified Section of this volume.

Owners, Managers, and Officials

Several occupation classes, segregating owners, managers, officials, proprietors, and other similar occupational titles on a type of industry basis, are set up to form the managerial division of this classification. Although most owner, manager, official, etc., occupational titles are coded to the managerial occupation classes, there are, nevertheless, exceptions to this practice.

Examples of typical exceptions are:

- Proprietor (E or OA) and manager — Barber shop or beauty parlour
(classified to "400 Barbers, hairdressers, etc.")
- Proprietor (E or OA) and manager — Photographic studio
(classified to "093 Photographers")
- Proprietor (E or OA) and manager — Art studio
(classified to "063 Artists, except commercial")

- Proprietor (E or OA) — Bootblack stand
(classified to "403 Bootblacks")
- Proprietor (E or OA) — Funeral home
(classified to "435 Undertakers")
- Proprietor (E or OA) — Business college or private school
(classified to "095 Teachers — School")
- Proprietor (E or OA) — Tailor shop
(classified to "785 Tailors")
- Proprietor (E or OA) — Blacksmith shop
(classified to "822 Blacksmiths")

Coders must examine the type of industry and class of worker reported in combination with the above and similar occupational titles in order to determine the correct code in each case. If, for example, a person is reported as a "taxi driver (E or OA) — taxi transportation" or "owner (OA) — taxi transportation", he is a taxi driver and must be coded as a taxi driver. If, on the other hand, the entry is "proprietor (E) — taxi transportation" or "owner (E) — taxi transportation" he may or may not drive a taxi himself. In this case he must be classified to a managerial occupation class, i.e., to "041 Owners, managers — Trans., storage and commun.", rather than to "217 Chauffeurs and taxi drivers". Thus, owners, proprietors, etc., engaged in an own account capacity but not chiefly in the management of their business are generally classified to the occupation indicated by the industry in which engaged rather than to a managerial class.

Armed Forces

Persons enlisted in the Permanent Armed Forces are coded either to "475 Officers — Armed Forces" or "476 Other ranks — Armed Forces" depending upon whether they are commissioned officers or not. Enlisted members of the three Armed Services are never coded to the occupation to which they are assigned. Civilian employees, on the other hand, employed by the Dept. of National Defence, are always coded to the civilian occupation as determined by the duties which they perform.

Occupation — Class of Worker Combinations

Some occupational titles are assigned to occupation classes on a class of worker basis. This practice is followed throughout this classification only in so far as duties and responsibilities of individuals employed in an employer, own account, wage-earner, or no pay capacity are considered sufficiently different to warrant their segregation into two occupation classes. The class of worker, when used as a basis in classifying occupational titles, is shown in brackets immediately to the right of the occupational title.

Examples listed below illustrate this point:

- (a) 333 Cattle buyer (W) — Any ind.
049 Cattle buyer (E or OA) — Cattle dealing whole. (Ind. 715)
- (b) 504 Gardener (W) — Market gardening
500 Gardener (E or OA) — Market gardening
- (c) 001 Lumberman (E) — Forestry; logging
568 Lumberman (OA or W) — Logging

Occupational titles shown without a class of worker symbol are assigned to occupation classes irrespective of the class of worker combination which may be reported. This does not mean, however, that persons reporting such occupational titles will in fact always report any of the four class of worker combinations. Locomotive engineer, paper maker, etc., for example, can only be reported as wage-earner; sales clerk, farm labourer, office clerk, etc., as wage-earner or no pay worker. Carpenter, plumber, truck driver, etc., on the other hand, may be reported in combination with any class of worker category.

Industrial Designations

Each occupational title in this classification consists of at least two parts, i.e., the occupational title proper and the industry or industries with which it is generally associated. The latter serves a threefold purpose in that it (a) permits the assignment of like occupational titles to different occupation classes where the duties vary as between industries, (b) aids in defining the specific occupation and thus assists the coder in grasping the underlying principles of the occupation classification and (c) forms the basis of classifying persons employed in an employer or own account capacity into the various occupation classes, particularly those in the managerial division.

"Switchboard operator - Tel. co.", for example, is classified to "288 Telephone operators" whereas "Switchboard operator (male) - Elec. light & power; street rail.", is included with "895 Power station operators". The duties of a switchboard operator are essentially those of a telephone operator in the former case and of a power station operator in the latter. It is necessary to point out that a switchboard operator who is in fact a telephone operator does not necessarily have to be employed by a telephone company but may be working for a finance company, department store, factory, etc. Hence the second function of the industrial designation is to indicate that switchboard operators, i.e., telephone operators, generally do work for telephone companies but if employed elsewhere they are classified to "288 Telephone operators" only where the nature of the industry is such that the person performs essentially the same duties as if employed by a telephone company. Finally, the industrial designation, when used in conjunction with "E" or "OA" class of worker categories indicates the particular industry or group of industries which must be reported and coded in combination with the occupation code in each case. The term "500 Farmer (E or OA) - Farming" simply means that the only industry codes consistent with this occupation are those covered by the agricultural division, i.e., 001 to 079, as shown in the companion volume, the Standard Industrial Classification.

A partial list of industrial designations and the industry classes (see Standard Industrial Classification) which each represents are shown below:

Terms in Parenthesis

Words in parenthesis have been used occasionally in this classification to clarify the occupation title which is included in a specific occupation class. These words are generally not reported by the enumerator. The term "artist" in "Painter (artist) - Any ind.", for example, means that a painter is coded "063" only if there is sufficient evidence on the questionnaire or document that the person is an artist.

Abbreviations

A list of abbreviations used throughout this volume is given on page 13 and is for the most part self-explanatory. Particular attention, however, need be given to the abbreviations "n.s." and "n.e.s.". "N.s." means "not stated" or "not specified" on the census document. "N.e.s." means "not elsewhere specified" in the occupation classification. "N.s." usually indicates that other similar but more specific occupation titles are listed in the classification of occupations and that the code symbol assigned to the occupation title qualified by this abbreviation is to be used only when the reported occupation together with any other entry on the census document (particularly the industry) does not indicate one of the more precise titles shown. A case in point is the term "939 Roofer, n.s. - Const." which appears in the Alphabetical Index together with such titles as "915 Roofer (wood shingle) - Const."; "855 Roofer - Sheet metal roofing"; "939 Roofer, except wood shingle or sheet metal - Const.", etc. In coding roofer, therefore, the coder must carefully examine the list of roofers given and use the code symbol assigned to "roofer, n.s." only if the one reported does not fit any of the other titles shown.

N.e.s. covers those cases where the occupation returned on the census document is not listed in some other form in the index. The class "841 Mechanics and repairmen, n.e.s.", for example, indicates that additional and more specific occupation classes have been provided for mechanics, i.e., "837 Mechanics and repairmen - Airplane", "880 Dental mechanics", etc., leaving the residual or miscellaneous mechanics to be included in the general occupation class "841 Mechanics and repairmen, n.e.s."

Do not use the code assigned to an occupation title qualified by "n.s.", or "n.e.s." until you are certain that none other is applicable. If in doubt, consult your supervisor.

Asterisk (*) Symbol

Occupational titles and occupation classes marked with an asterisk (*) are further explained in supplementary instructions.

Coding Procedure: A coder will become familiar with the contents and organization of this volume, attain a higher degree of coding accuracy, and eventually gain greater coding speed by keeping in mind the seven points mentioned below:

(1) Examine the contents of this volume carefully and familiarize yourself with its general plan.

(2) Study the supplementary instructions supplied to each coder carefully.

(3) Visualize the type of work performed by the individual whose occupation you are coding and examine it in the light of other facts on the questionnaire, particularly the type of industry, industrial status (class of worker), earnings, weeks of employment, years of schooling, and sex. Code only after you are satisfied that all these facts are consistent with the occupation in question.

(4) Never code from the summary of occupation classes and at first do not code directly from the Alphabetical Index. For best results code only after you have located the desired occupation in the Alphabetical Index and checked its relationship in the Classified Section both with respect to other terms in the occupation class and the occupation division to which it is allocated.

(5) Watch for occupational differences as between areas. Ask yourself whether or not the occupation you have located in the Occupation Classification is likely to be found in the enumeration area which you are coding. It may be that you have misinterpreted the enumerator's entry or are in the wrong section of the Occupation Classification.

(6) Watch for misspelled enumeration entries.

(7) Do not impulsively code such occupation entries as "counter girl" to "110 Bookkeepers and cashiers", "mother's helper" to "456 Domestic servants", "Maitre de maison" to "913 Brick and stone masons", "Cooper" to "477 Policemen and detectives", "Taxidermist" to "217 Chauffeurs and taxi drivers", "Journalier" to "065 Authors, editors, and journalists", "Bus boy" to "213 Bus drivers", "Bull cook" to "452 Cooks", etc.
